

Checking for shared neutrals:

Remove the outlet covers, and make sure that the white wires (neutrals) is a straight run, and not wire connected to other white wires. The red connector is a wing connector. Electricians use that to combine 2 or more wires. That is definitely sharing neutrals, which is incorrect.